Carnlough

Carnlough Controlled Integrated Primary School is a small village school situated on the Antrim Coast. The school gained integrated status in 2001 and we are proud to continue the tradition of an education centre on our site – 165 years of providing education to the children in the local area.

Our aim is to educate children together, developing each child to their full potential. We have access to an excellent natural learning environment with beaches, waterfalls, hills, harbour and forests on our doorstep. Visitors comment on our friendly, welcoming atmosphere and we strongly believe that happy children are more open to learning.

We work closely with other schools in the area, and after taking part in the Project for Integrating and Enriching Education (PIEE) we have formed the Glens Community of Learning to continue the sharing expertise between our small schools as well as providing opportunities for our children to learn together. We know that integration works and no better way to integrate than in sitting side by side learning.
